“Professional Development through Volunteerism”

Overview: This one-hour webinar talk by Denise Walters, Ph.D. presents some of the advantages of volunteerism and how it can help you to grow your career. Dr. Walters will share her personal experiences in leadership in the American Chemical Society (ACS) and will also share a few quotes from other members of the executive committee. While her remarks will be based on her own experiences in the ACS, similar opportunities exist from providing service to other volunteer and/or professional organizations such as ASQ.

About the Presenter: Denise Walters is a Sr. Manager in the Science and Technology group at Pfizer Consumer Healthcare in Richmond. She has a BS in Chemistry and Ph.D. in Pharmacy with a focus in bioanalysis from Virginia Commonwealth University. She has more than 25 years of experience in the pharmaceutical industry. Her career long experience includes organic synthesis, analytical method validation and sample analyses in various dosage forms and biological matrices, raw materials, manufacturing, dissolution and pharmacokinetic modeling. She directed analytical projects for both the National Cancer Institute and National Toxicology program and has experience in both GMP and GLP environments. Dr. Walters has published in both the fields of pharmacokinetics and bioanalysis and is a co-author on 2 patents. Currently, she manages a group of chemists that support global dietary supplement product development. The strengths that have contributed to her successes include communication and presentation skills, responsibility, perseverance, and connectedness.

EVENT DATE: Thursday, November 3, 2016
Virtual Meeting using GoToMeeting.com
12:00PM-1:00PM
Presentation (BYOL – “bring your own lunch”)
Meeting log-in information will be provided after you have registered.

Register now at Eventbrite:
https://www.eventbrite.com/e/november-2016-asq-blue-ridge-section-webinar-1-tickets-28636671054
The deadline to register is Thursday, November 3 at 11:00 AM.

ASQ membership is NOT required to attend this event, so please share this flyer with your friends and colleagues!